Wilson, Free Trader.

President Wilson's free trade declaration in his speech to the National Grain Dealers' convention at Baltimore, has occasioned serious alarm among his political managers, Mr. Wilson said, "I want to see American plited against the world, not in self-ishness but in brains." Expressed in plain English, instead of in that parabolic phraseology in which Mr. Wilson has been given marked attention. In Glimer county with the American labor must be "pitted against the world."

Woodrow Wilson and his party are, of course, essentially free traders, but strict injunctions have gone forth from the Democratic headquarters to the Democratic speakers to "soft pedal on the free trade stuff," as it is not popular with the American votage were cast for Roosevelt and Taft, is not popular with the American vot-ers. In 1912, 1,300,000 more votes were cast for Roosevelt and Taft, both of whom ran on frankly protective tariff platform, than for Woodrow Wilson, hence the Instructions of the Democratic managers, instructions which the Democratic presidential candidate has been the first to violate.

Hair-Splitting Lawyers.
Dictator Wilson was pretty free with his censure of lawyers and bustnessmen alike in his address to the National Grain Dealers. "I was a lawyer once myseif before I reformed," declared Mr. Wilson, "and I can divide a hair twixt North and Northeast side, but I do not think it worth while and I do not think it worth while and I do not think th tatutes are the places for ingenu

Then, turning his attention to business men. Mr. Wilson said that the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce had been making extremely able reports on means of extend-ing foreign trade but "I have found to my amazement that some of the best of those reports seem never to have been read." have been read.

have been read."

That Mr. Wilson is still pretty familiar with and never hesitates to employ the less reputable tricks of the legal profession is clearly shown by his designation of the railway wage increase bill as an "eight-hour bill." It is an axiom of lawyers that the lawyer with a weak case should talk about something else, and Mr. Wilson scrupulously follows that injunction, for having compolled Congress to pass a wage increase statute, he seeks to defend it by an academic discussion and defense of "the principle of the eight hour day," a matter in no way involved in that statter in no way involved in that stat ute. If Mr. Wilson had ever tried to read some of the reports of the bu-reau of domestic and foreign com-merce he might be less censorious of those business men who omit to read them istration, seven or eight new buildings and large additions, and an agricultural farm of six hundred acres have been provided. The Jast session of the legislature appropriated $140,000 for teachers salaries beside large amounts for agricultural experiment station, agricultural extension, and mining extension. A school of medicine, a school of pharmacy, a state hygienic laboratory, a roads bureau, agricultural extension department, and a mining extension department and many other departments and activities have been started and encouraged to take the expert knowledge of the university directly to the people.

The preparatory department has been abolish 4 and the regular colleges and old-line departments have been brought up to high standard. The agricultural extension department alone, which reaches the farmers of every county in the state, requires a budget about four times as large as that provided for the entire university when the Republicans took university when the Republicans took Did Governor MacCorkle speak for his party when he said in Afect in the state senate a few years ago: "The university costs too much? It should cut out all the recovering follows." university costs too much? It should cut out all the progressive fads and get back to the reading, writing and arithmetic!" All great states have great universities. The Republican party knows how to keep our university in the line of progress.

The Origin of Savings Banks. The savings bank movement had Thomas Eddy of New York received a letter from a London magistrate manned Patrick Colquboun during that year, in which he outlined the English savings bank idea. James Savage of Boston and Condy Raguet of Philadelphia likewise received the same intormation, but from what source is not definitely known.

These three gentlemen, unknown to each other, began to formulate plans for the establishment of savings banks for the alleviation of poverty on the part of the masses, and to encourage habits of thrift and industry among the poor. Numerous attempts had therefore been made by well-meaning parsons to account

THE DAILY NOVELET

RUDOLPH THE GREAT.

"I've heard a lot about trained fleas," observed Colonel Harta Beetem meditatively, "but I've yet to see the trained flea that could hold a can-dle to my Rudolph."

Several members of the Necks to Nature Club rose casually as though remembering engagements elsewhere, remembering engagements elsewhere, and, just as casually, the colonel got to the door ahead of them, locked it, and slipped the key in his pocket.

"Yes, gentlemen," he continued, "Rudolph was the world's champion trained flea. He could count up to 100 by wiggling his legs, though after 100 his little legs got too tired. He could also turn handsprings, do a perfect sailor's hornpipe, chin himself eight times and do all sorts of stunts on his little parallel bars. I only wish I had him to show you gentlemen now." tlemen now."

"Run away from you, did he, col-onel?" asked Twombly Spiffs sarcas-

"I wouldn't call it that," replied the colonel with his sweet smile. "It came about like this. I was showing The savings bank movement had hardly started in England and Scotland daring the early part of the aimeteenth century when the idea crossed the Atlantic and quickly took root in our soil. Sometime during the year 1816 such schemes were simultaneously conceived in New York Philadelphia and Boston, through correspondence with the mother country. Thomas Eddy of New York received a letter from a London magistrate times to do a hand stand and he neve moved, I realized that it wasn't Ru-dolph at all. By that time Dirty-Neck had moved off and Rudolph was lost to me forever."

And the colonel unlocked the door with his aweet smile and returned to his toddy.
